Learn the Technical Skills you need. 2020 is the year of shooters in India. The Bollywood industry is moving to India as it wants to avoid paying the astronomical fees to shoot in countries like New Zealand, Australia, South Africa or other developed countries. When it comes to the fashion industry, many designers and fashion houses are migrating to India due to the low costs of production, talented and skilled fashion designers and photographers. As a photographer, you need to be prepared to capture all these shots in India. In this post, we're going to take a look at the best Digital cameras to shoot from India for Indian street photography, one of my favourite categories.

How to Survive in India In a country where all of the world's goods and fashion are manufactured, India has become a haven for bargain shoppers. With every fashion and beauty brand expanding to the country, a shopper can find a label or brand in one of the largest cities for incredibly cheap. This has led to a growth in counterfeit Indian products. From copies of designer labels to fake mobile phones and USB drives, India has become a destination for counterfeiters to make money. People have found ways to survive in India, adapting to the new realities. One of the main techniques for faking the labels off of the products is faking the logo on the product, so people don't know what they're buying. With so much counterfeiting, with such low prices and the recent introduction of fashion brands, it is a very unsafe environment to photograph people in India. Of course, it depends on the brand, but some brands that have fake products in most stores are printed with distorting ink, making the branding and logos difficult to read.

How to survive and prepare your shoots in India There is a lot of work and preparation that goes into photography in India. If you need to plan ahead, whether it is for a fashion shoot or a fashion photography project, you need to have a plan of action. If you're shooting for a larger fashion brand, you should have an idea of 388ed7b0c7
